A person alone can only carry on so long—can only endure so much. Beyond that, nothing but a reliance on God can provide the inspiration to keep moving forward.

After almost a decade of providing occupational therapy in nursing homes, author J.P. Landers was halfway into a career and close to burning out. Then Landers learned to see how God was working on a daily basis, and everything changed.

In these true accounts, Landers shows all the ways God never failed to be there. Some stories involve calm, introspective moments, where someone just needed to reach out, to pay attention, or to care. Others are tense ordeals, critical moments where life and death hung in the balance. In each instance, though, a spiritual presence guided it all.

Along with these insider tales is a guide for how to go about choosing a nursing home for your loved one. This guide tells you what to look for and critical questions to ask while screening a facility.

Behind These Doors reveals the seldom seen range of experiences within nursing homes, illustrating the moments when we need God—and each other—the most.
