Mashing

Life is good for Toby and Damon—maybe too good. What happens when someone seems intent on destroying their happiness?

Toby and Damon are growing closer every day, with Toby recovering from the shot to his shoulder and Damon trying to keep him from pushing too hard too fast. Things are good between them.

They're even better in the bedroom, where Toby is learning all sorts of new things and Damon is happily pushing his limits.

They've almost forgotten that someone doesn't seem as happy with their closeness as they are, when Toby walks into his studio to find it trashed and his little apartment ransacked. Are the authorities going to be able to apprehend the culprit before Toby decides the best course of action is to remove himself from the equation?

Brewing

As the love between Toby and Damon deepens, the man intent on destroying their happiness increases his efforts.

Toby and Damon are back in Brewing, their relationship deepening more despite the continuing efforts of a stranger to bring them down.

Helping in their efforts are their best friends Peter and Christian. Peter's new investment in a three-story building on the same block as Damon's bar offers Toby the opportunity of having a studio close to home. It also gives Peter and Christian a home they've made together, which Peter hopes will bring them closer together.

A former soldier, Christian has a hard time letting go and finding his subspace. It's going to take a lot to break the conditioning he's learned in the Army. Peter is stubborn, though, and he's seriously falling for his strong sub.

Will yet another attack bring down two couples this time?
