It's a robot, but it doesn't operate by itself. The ARTAS system has the potential to transform the global hair restoration market. Your transplant can be completed in one day — it takes between six and eight hours, patients go back to work earlier because hair grows back quickly and there is little or no scarring. It consists of a camera, color identification sensors, and 3-D imaging software guides the robotic arm of ARTAS in selecting which follicles to score. To carry out the rest of the FUE process, ARTAS employs: needle punch mechanism, disposable dermal punches disposable cartridges, a video imaging system, and user interface. The ARTAS system has the potential to transform the global hair restoration market.
